This isn't the first time Sergio Lull has taken part in the race; in fact he's always been in the top ten but today he said he felt "very strong and I was able to get away from the pack early and ride alone for almost 100 kilometres". Ainhoa Moreno, a young rider who forms part of the Italian professional team Aromitalia Basso, also came out on top and knew that "I was strong and I could do well because I know the roads. It's fortunate to be able to hold and enjoy an event of these characteristics at home" said Ainhoa Moreno.

Scaloni's happy to be back at the Mallorca 312 OK Mobility

The manager of Argentina's football squad, Lionel Scaloni, also opted for the 167-kilometre distance. On his arrival at the finish line he highlighted the "great atmosphere experienced on the island today by all cycling fans" and added that "it's wonderful to be able to ride along the island's roads without any traffic and in the company of friends".
